Our Mango Industry

Australia's mango industry is worth over $220 million and plays an important role in supporting regional communities across north Australia. Mangoes are grown in every state (except for Tassie, too chilly!) and in the Northern Territory.

Our growers are the heart of it all—committed, skilled, and passionate about producing beautiful, flavoursome mangoes. Behind the scenes, businesses and individuals across the supply chain collaborate with equal dedication—working in partnership to ensure Australian mangoes reach consumers domestically and internationally at the highest quality.

Who We Are

Australian Mango Industry Association (AMIA), also known as Australian Mangoes was created by growers, for growers. We're a company limited by guarantee and proudly serve as the peak industry body representing commercial mango growers across the country.

With guidance from our regionally based Grower Directors, the Australian Mangoes team delivers services, support, and strong advocacy for our members. We're backed by a passionate network of grower and allied members.

Our Vision

AMIA will lead the Australian mango industry on a path of profitable and sustainable growth.

Our Purpose

To service and lead a sustainable, progressive and resilient Australian mango industry while championing the rights of mango growers. Our focus is on advocacy, research and development, market development and technology.

your membership matters

The Australian mango industry is a growing, successful and progressive industry. As the industry's peak body, we work closely with all stakeholders to drive its ongoing success. For the industry to remain successful it needs a strong national community that unites to achieve common goals and ensures the collective and individual success of businesses involved in the industry.

Your membership allows AMIA to engage with both government and business to provide advice during policy development and also influence key decision makers. Membership fees also assist us to maintain financial membership of the NFF Horticulture Council and other relevant bodies which enables us to work collaboratively with many other horticulture organisations.

what we do

MARKETS

We advocate for fair, transparent domestic markets and improved access across Australian states while respecting biosecurity.

We work to improve export market access and protocols. In collaboration with the Australian government, we've secured access to New Zealand, China, South Korea, and the USA, and improved access to Japan. We're also working with DAFF to improve phytosanitary protocols.

We manage orchard and packhouse registrations for protocol markets and coordinate international inspector visits with DAFF and industry partners.

RESEARCH & DEVELOPMENT

We help guide the direction of research through our strong professional relationships with researchers across Australia and membership of Hort Innovation's Mango Strategic Industry Advisory Panel.

We actively seek to identify and build research networks to enhance industry knowledge.

NEWS & EVENTS

We bring the mango industry together through key events such as the pre-season roadshows and the Australian Mango Conference. These gatherings provide valuable opportunities for sharing insights, and staying up to date with the latest industry developments.

Throughout the year, we also keep the industry informed and connected with our Mango Matters magazine (quarterly), weekly emails during the season, and monthly updates in the off-season.

LABOUR

We advocate for access to secure, reliable and productive seasonal labour force.

QUALITY

We offer NIR Dry Matter Testing in the weeks leading up to harvest.

CROP PROTECTION

We provide up-to-date information on registered agrichemicals and crop protection strategies for growers and agronomists.

We maintain and update the list of MRL's for agrichemicals for Australian and key export markets.

In partnership with Hort Innovation, we help secure minor use permits by identifying industry priorities, supporting applications and advocating to agrichemical companies, ensuring growers have access to essential products not otherwise available.

BIOSECURITY

As one of the first plant industries to be a signatory to the Emergency Plant Pest Response Deed, we ensured commercial mango growers would be in the best position possible to gain reimbursement in the event of an approved response to an exotic pest incursion.

We are developing regional production maps showing mango orchards and known 'feral' trees. These maps will be critical in understanding potential pest spread and guiding effective responses during an exotic pest incursion.

We advocate for stronger enforcement of interstate plant movement and increased border surveillance.

We provide best practice biosecurity resources to help reduce the risk of the spread of pests and diseases.

CROP FORECASTING & DISPATCH INFORMATION

Each season, we work with growers to forecast regional yields for key mango varieties. These forecasts support businesses through the supply chain with marketing, logistics, while helping transport companies manage crop flow during the peak season.

RESOURCES

We maintain a comprehensive and ever-evolving library of best practice resources on our website to support a productive, profitable and sustainable mango industry. Behind the scenes, we work closely with experts and project partners to translate research into practical tools and guidance.

TRADE

We advocate for workable trade movement protocols across state and territory borders that provide protection from regionally important pests but are the least restrictive.

you're helping shape the future of our industry—but what's in it for you?

1 ELECTED REPRESENTATION IN YOUR REGION

Producer members elect their regional Grower Director, someone actively involved in the industry and working on your behalf. Stay in touch, share your concerns, or even step forward when positions open up. Meet your regional directors here.

2 INFORMED, SUPPORTED, CONNECTED

Producer members stay informed with regular updates, expert advice, and support from the Australian Mangoes team. You'll receive export updates for international markets and both digital and printed editions of Mango Matters, our industry magazine.

This season, members will receive complimentary NIR dry matter testing, provided by Australian Mangoes (conditions apply).

3 EXCLUSIVE ACCESS

FAQ's

Q. I pay mango levies, does that mean I am an AMIA member?

A. No. AMIA is a not-for-profit member organisation. While all commercial mango growers pay levies on mangoes sent to the fresh market (domestic and export), AMIA members pay a separate membership fee directly to AMIA.

Q. Does AMIA get my levies?

A. Not directly. AMIA participates in a competitive tender process to access levy funding and manage R&D projects offered by Hort Innovation. AMIA only applies for projects when they feel they are best placed to manage these projects. AMIA provides a stable business structure, a regionally based team of skilled staff and a Board of grower directors with oversight to enable sound representation of industry and to ensure projects are aligned to industry needs.

Q. I already pay levies and receive information from AMIA. Why pay for membership?

A. It is true you will see some benefits as a levy payer because AMIA manages the administration of projects funded by your levies managed by Hort Innovation (e.g. the Communication project delivers Mango Matters and My Mango).

Your membership gives AMIA the ability to work effectively on your behalf on the range of issues outside specific levy funded projects. Levy funds cannot be used for advocacy purposes, so some of the work we undertake on your behalf is funded from other sources, including membership fees.
